Gonzalo Cerruela Garcia, is Associate Professor in the area of Computer Science and Artificial Intelligence and is attached to the Department of Computing and Numerical Analysis University of Córdoba.

Electronic Engineering in 1989 and PhD in Computer Science in 1999. His teaching responsibilities include the disciplines of Databases, Data Structures and Information, Methodology and Programming Technology and Software Engineering.

His research interest focus on computational chemistry new solutions, systems support to education, parallel computing, among others.