

The PASEDI project (Distance Payment and Service) is a project subsidized by the Industry, Tourism and Commerce Ministry in the announcement PROFIT 2007. PASEDI has an effect for two years (2007-2008) and its target is the development, test and evaluation of a payment system and service with mobile phones and NFC (Near Field Communication) technology.

The following private and public companies take part in the PASEDI project:

Sermepa (Manager)

Custos Mobile

Caixa Catalunya

Universitat Pompeu Fabra

Universitat de Córdoba
The University of Córdoba is a public university located in Córdoba, Spain. It was founded in 1289 and is one of the oldest universities in Spain. The university has a long history of academic excellence and research. It is a member of the Association of Universities in Spain (AEU) and the Association of Universities in the Mediterranean (AUM). The university has a wide range of faculties and departments, offering a variety of undergraduate and postgraduate programs. It is also a member of the European Association of Universities (EAU) and the European Association of Public Universities (EAPU). The university has a strong commitment to social responsibility and sustainability. It has implemented various initiatives to promote social inclusion and environmental sustainability. The university also has a strong commitment to research and innovation. It has established several research centers and institutes, focusing on areas such as health, social sciences, and technology. The university has a strong international presence, with many international students and faculty members. It has established partnerships with universities and research institutions around the world. The university is a member of the European Association of Universities (EAU) and the European Association of Public Universities (EAPU). The university has a strong commitment to social responsibility and sustainability. It has implemented various initiatives to promote social inclusion and environmental sustainability. The university also has a strong commitment to research and innovation. It has established several research centers and institutes, focusing on areas such as health, social sciences, and technology. The university has a strong international presence, with many international students and faculty members. It has established partnerships with universities and research institutions around the world.